BROWNSVILLE'S Little Leaguers put on a pretty fine show for somewhere around 300 people at Lions Park Monday night. Some of the kids seemed to have slight cases of the jitters playing in the unfamiliar surroundings but all-in-all they snapped out of it pretty quick and played some fair baseball. If everything goes right, both the Brownsville leagues may have their own parks by the time next season rolls around. The West Brownsville Lions, sponsors of one league are making tentative plans to erect a fence around part of their field at West Fifth and St. Francis Streets and the Kiwanis Club has proposed a completely equipped park for the little leaguers at Fort Brown and some preliminary work has already been done.
